Welcome to Green Gables Heritage Place

Discover the magic of Anne of Green Gables at this iconic site, where L.M. Montgomery found inspiration for her beloved novel. Wander the trails, visit the recreated barn, and learn how Anne's story continues to inspire visitors from around the world.

Green Gables House

Green Gables House was once the home of the Macneill family, cousins of L.M. Montgomery. While Montgomery did not live here, she spent much of her childhood nearby and visited the Macneill farmhouse frequently. This property inspired the setting of Anne of Green Gables, where Montgomery imagined her beloved character, Anne Shirley, finding her home.

Although the house is not the real home of the fictional characters Anne, Marilla, and Matthew, it is a faithful representation of what Anne's world might have looked like. The décor inside is based on the descriptions found in the novel, creating a space that feels as though Anne could have lived here.

L.M. Montgomery

Lucy "Maud" Montgomery, born in 1874 in nearby Clifton, was raised in Cavendish by her grandparents. Her writing, influenced by the landscapes and community around her, began early in her life. Anne of Green Gables was published in 1908 and became an instant success, marking the start of Montgomery's extensive literary career. By her passing in 1942, she had published 20 novels and hundreds of short stories and poems, leaving a rich legacy that continues to inspire new adaptations.
